

THE DAILY HERALD

Salt Lake City, - - Utah.

THURSDAY, : : SEPTEMBER 18, 1884.

THE DAILY HERALD is published every morning, Monday excepted, at the Herald Block, corner West Temple and First South Streets, Salt Lake City, by THE HERALD PRINTING AND PUBLISHING COMPANY. Subscription price, $10.50 per annum, postage included; parts of the year at the same rate. To weekly subscribers, collections made by carriers & cents a week.

THE WEEKLY HERALD is published every Wednesday and Saturday morning, at $5.00 a year; six months, $2.75; postage included.

THE HERALD will confer a favor by forwarding information to the office when their papers are not duly delivered. This will greatly aid us in our efforts to determine where the fault lies.

NOT "SECTARIAN BUT MORMON."

Col. Hollister's communication on the Seventh District school meeting appears this morning, and will speak for itself. THE HERALD asks that its readers peruse it carefully, and if there be in its lines between them or remotely connected with them anything conducive to healthful thought, give it all the consideration the reader is capable of. If Col. Hollister is right in his statements, they are as true as though he spoke by the voice of inspiration; if not true, they deserve such treatment as usually attaches to documents of an unwholesome character anywhere and everywhere.

THE HERALD takes a position somewhat at variance with that of the Colonel in his opening of the argument, he stating that "the position of the Liberal party on education is illustrated by the numerous and costly schools, several of them free, and all taught by first-class teachers, which the members of that party have been the means of establishing in this city and other towns of Utah." The position of the Liberal party as such is not so illustrated and Mr. Hollister knows it, being a long-time resident of Utah and a student of her arithmetical, geographical, financial and social conditions. The Liberal party, as such, has built nothing in the way of schools or schoolhouses in Utah; it has not only built nothing of the kind, but has very grudgingly and complainingly contributed to the payment of taxes or levies of whatever nature toward the building of such institutions. The People's party, on the other hand, has built nearly all the educational institutions worthy of mention in the Territory, outside of this city, and has never refused its support even when apparently but fraudulently outwitted. We defy Mr. Hollister or any member of his party to refute this statement. And then he talks about himself and his associates being "forced" into the attitude in which they appeared on the occasion of the meeting referred to, and says they "seemed" to stand in the way of education. They not only "seemed" to do so, but they did, and the cause therefore is not "understood by everybody," his allegation to the contrary notwithstanding.

Col. Hollister ought to know, and we believe he does know, that all the school houses, except such as have been built by public funds, that have been erected in this Territory have been built by one or the other of the churches that have a footing here, and that the Liberal party as a party has had nothing whatever to do with them. Under such circumstances, why it is or how it is that our esteemed contributor can reconcile it to his mind that everybody understands the why and wherefore of the Liberal objections to building houses dedicated to the education of the young, almost surpasses comprehension. And yet he claims that this attitude on the part of himself and his associates is "well understood" by everybody! Well, hardly.

To synopses Col. Hollister's article is easily done. He says in substance: "You propose to tax the Gentiles as well as the Mormons for the purpose of building a public schoolhouse; we cannot send our children to your schools, because we disagree on certain points of doctrine, and want our offspring brought up to think as we think; while admitting that the claim is made to which there is no denial, that your schools are non-sectarian, and that religion will not be taught there, still the proposed institution will be erected and controlled by Mormons, and, as we desire to keep ourselves and everything pertaining to us aloof from such people, we have a right to object to the payment of the proposed tax." Now, no one of sound mind will question the right of anybody to object to anything; but an objection is not necessarily the settlement of the point at issue, and the objection raised by our correspondent settles nothing. He don't want Mormon and Gentile children mixed up, and thinks it improper that the parents of the latter should be taxed in order that all may acquire the benefits of scholastic training. Stripped of assumptions, conjectures and prejudice, the letter of Mr. Hollister amounts to just what we have stated; whereas, elsewhere and at other times, he has abused the Mormons roundly for their alleged exclusiveness and their unwillingness to become homogeneous with the rest of the country.

Says our correspondent: "It is no difference what is taught in the so-called public schools of Utah, or who teaches." The Mormon Church maintains and teaches practices that to the Gentiles are degrading and corrupting. There is no social interchange between Gentile and Mormon, mainly on this account.

If it is no difference what is taught in such schools, why raise the question at all? And the allegation that the Mormon Church does things which to the colonel and his coterie are degrading and corrupting, is nothing whatever to do with the question. We further deny that "there is no social interchange between Gentile and Mormon" on that account or on any account, and assert, on the contrary, that the conflicting elements in this Territory have reduced their conflict to such proportions that, if it were not for such papers as the Tribune and such men as Col. Hollister, we would hardly know there was any conflict at all. Why they keep up an agitation which merely agitates and accomplishes nothing more, is their business; if capital can be made out of such a proceeding, if they can reconcile it with their consciences to make the heavens shrink upward with their clamor for additional educational institutions to-day, and condemn the men who step forward and try to provide them the next, let them do it; no one should complain. They have their own destiny to work out, and are doing it consistently. Like the newly-arrived Irishman at Castle Garden, their conception of the general duties of a citizen or even a partizan may be either misunderstood or not comprehended at all; but so long as there is a government they are "agin it."

THE HOG CASE.

We heard a story once of a man that was troubled by a hog which had found his way through a hollow log that lay under the fence that enclosed one side of the man's corn field. The man quietly moved a section of the fence in, and the next morning the hog started for his regular breakfast in the corn. He went through the log as usual, but was astonished to find he was not in the field. He went back to the other end and tried it over with a similar result. This time he stopped and studied the matter over thoughtfully, and then went back to the other end of the log and made the third journey through it. Then a sort of a frenzy seized him, and with a rush he repented the experiment seven times more, and then in a panic fled to his sty.—Tribune.

The joke is a little older than the one the Governor gets off on all public occasions at which he speaks, but that is nothing. The above has the merit of being true; it is a fair presumption, to do the editor justice, that he did not know this, or he would not have used it. The event occurred in Utah and the animal came from a neighboring State; it (the animal) discovered the hollow log of opportunity and occasionally crawled through it into the field of respectability. The owners of the field were willing for the brute to remain so long as he kept his nose out of what he had no right to dig into, but this he would not do; so they removed the part of the enclosure where the log of opportunity lay, and the animal, after repeated futile attempts to get back to where he might have done well, gave up the task entirely and went back to his sty to luxuriate without intermission in his native mire.

THE Tribune goes out of its way to attack Mr. W. B. Douglass for a dispatch sent to Chicago over his signature, which dispatch was returned to this city in the Associated Press reports. Mr. Douglass is a special agent, acting under instructions from Mr. Smith, the general agent at Chicago, and he sent the dispatch in question by the latter's direction. Furthermore, he sent a correct report and one as complete as a synopsis could be, the features being set out and nothing stated that did not occur. The Tribune differs, but the Tribune does not always tell the truth.

THE DEMOCRATIC nominee for Governor of Nebraska, Hon. J. Sterling Morton, is a gentleman well qualified for the duties of the office to which we hope he will be elected; he is most popular where he is best known, and will not have to depend entirely upon the vote of his party, which, however, will be cast as a unit for him.

In 1872 the New York Tribune expressed the opinion that Mr. Blaine was "a coward by instinct and a bully by calculation." Its Salt Lake namesake occupies an almost identical position. Embarrassing, of course, but oh, how true!

WHEN I am thinking, all alone,
I feel exceeding small;
And wish that I had written less,
Or better, not at all.
I wish my path had been more straight,
Myself much more upright;
With a man I cursed some days ago
I now applaud all night.
—Tribune Editor.

It is an open question whether or not the Tribune editor, after grabbing up successively several handfuls of back yard fifth and scattering it around at random, washes his "pickers and stealers" before he reads a chapter from that Bible.

CONSCIENCE is a jewel. The Tribune editor wears no jewelry of any kind.

A GOOD PAPER.

The American, a bright weekly paper published in Philadelphia, contains the following:

While the religious newspapers of the North and the great majority of the clergy of all Christian denominations appear to be unfriendly to Mr. Cleveland's candidacy, he enjoys the support of the most distinctively American Church on the continent, the Church of the Latter-day Saints—one of the few which originated in America, and the only one that has held up any part of the continent as its earthly paradise,—is decidedly favorable to the Democratic party. It likes that party on principle, as the one which pledges itself to the smallest amount of interference with individual liberty and rights. Its missionaries in the east praise Mr. Cleveland as the model of all that a statesman ought to be. They do not like Mr. Blaine, because he refused to call on Brigham Young, and because when he met Mr. Young on an excursion, he told him that the American people had the right and the will to put down polygamy. Unfortunately for Mr. Cleveland, all this good will counts for little at the polls. The Mormons generally have no votes as living in a Territory, and Utah never will be admitted as a State until they abandon the multiple marriage system.

There is an air of fairness in the above, such as makes the reading of it quite enjoyable; but it is not quite free from those errors which seem inseparable from all accounts of anything pertaining to Utah, published at a distance. In the first place, Mr. Cleveland does not enjoy the support of the Mormon church, for two reasons—because it can give no support, and is not a political body; but that a majority, or at least a great number of its members, are moral supporters of the Democratic candidate for President, is doubtless the fact. Its missionaries in the east do not, as such, praise Mr. Cleveland as a model statesman, although individually they probably, and very properly, believe him to be one. They are not opposed to Mr. Blaine because he refused to call on Brigham Young, but more likely esteem this as a favor, since it relieved their departed chief of an unnecessary affliction. And, finally, we cannot agree with our valued contemporary that Utah will never be admitted as a State. With these exceptions, we shake hands, cordially and wish the American the best of success; in its disposition to be frank, candid and honest, it is entitled to the good will of all good people.

The fourth company of emigrants which has left Liverpool this season came into the city yesterday morning; a HERALD reporter who was present at the quarters in the Tithing yard when the company sat down to refreshments prepared for them by the committee having such matters in charge, was most favorably impressed by the appearance of the new arrivals.

MURDER OF MRS. FIFE.

The Mexican Who Shot Her is Dead.

Since the first publication of the news that Mrs. Fife, wife to ex-Marshall W. N. Fife, of Ogden—both of whom are well known in this city—had been murdered near Tombstone, Arizona, nothing has been heard to throw further light upon the startling intelligence. The following particulars are found in the California papers:

The wife of William N. Fife was murdered by a Mexican named Francisco, at Fife's ranch in the Chiricahua mountains, on Thursday afternoon, Francisco came to Fife's at 3 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, and asked for something to eat, which was given him. Mrs. Fife charged him 25 cents for the meal. Francisco said that was too much, and she replied that 15 cents would do. At this point Francisco said: "Who is that coming?" and as Mrs. Fife looked, he quickly drew a pistol and shot her in the side. As she fell, fatally wounded, her daughter, fifteen years of age, screamed for help. The fiend turned upon the girl and at tempted to shoot her, but the pistol missed fire. The outcry attracted the attention of a Mexican employed at the place, who rushed in, and grappling with the murderer, succeeded in taking his pistol away. Francisco fled toward the bushes, when two shots were fired at him, one of which probably took effect in his leg, but he escaped. A large number of ranchers, together with a sheriff's posse, are in pursuit. The Board of Supervisors have offered a reward of $500 for the capture of the murderer. At the time of the tragedy Mr. Fife was on his way home from this place.

Since the above was printed, the following dispatch has been received at Ogden:

My wife was shot and killed by a Mexican. The murderer was lynched.

Ruled off the Track.

The following item is taken from the Helena Independent, and will prove interesting to Salt Lake horse men:

J. W. Montgomery was ruled off the track yesterday and fined $100—ch m. Ethel trotting once too often in the 2:40 class and ruled off the track.

We append below a summary of two trotting races at Salt Lake City in June 1882. Ethel gaining race and a record of 2:37. Our attractive purses brought this same mare to light on the Helena track as Lullie W., driven by J. W. Montgomery, from Salt Lake, and entered in the 2:40, 2:40, and free for all races, but our wide awake managers gave Lullie W., alias Ethel, alias Dakota Maid, record 2:35, the grand bounce, and we trust our neighbors will give her a wide berth, also her gentlemanly driver.

THIS very substantial improvements being made by presiding Bishop W. B. Preston, in and around the General Tithing Office buildings in this city, we have before referred to. Since then the completion of plastering, whitening, and painting, and now the laying of a concrete tarred roadway through the archway of the principal entrance, give the premises an appearance, so much more agreeable than its past ancient look, that it is really refreshing. Very commendable.

L. Rorvay and family relate among the wonders of their recent "out" that they came across a monster mushroom, larger than an ordinary hat. One half of it made a luscious supper for the whole camp.
